Comments: Every assignment and the people encountered were by-in-large the finest people GOD ever created, and were the best one could ever want to encounter and work with. But this first actual assignment was the one setting the stage and expectations for all the rest. The men and their families in this job, on this assignment, were the ones shaping my personal development to create me as the military professional I became through the years to come. I loved you then, am still fond of your memory today, salute you for who you were to me, and will remember you always.
